Act Phase

4

IDENTIFY NEW

OPPORTUNITIES. Through the learnings and insights gathered from community organizing, and as the network looks towards another cycle of the process, opportunities for further action are identified. Over time, it is important to assess where the community is at in its level of comfort, engagement, and ownership of the issues of domestic and sexual violence, so that the network can design the next approach to the cycle based on what will carry the community deeper into its participation in social change.

CELEBRATE THE NETWORK AND

ITS ACHIEVEMENTS. The network takes time to celebrate their accomplishments and to feel connected to the greater vision. Because social change is a long process, it is critical to celebrate small successes along the way, through food, connection, and recognition of network members' contributions.

DEBRIEF WHAT WAS DISCOVERED AND

LEARNED. Network teams debrief what worked and what could be improved about specific actions. Lessons learned are documented and shared across the network to increase innovation and learning, cross-pollinate ideas, and inspire one another as the network cycles through and deepens work in each phase.

Let's Talk About Your Data

Each site have a few minutes to talk about the data and learnings they have collected

What themes do you see in the data and community learnings that have been shared?

Is this Action/Mobilization?

- Where is the energy in your network? What is your community focused on right now?
 - How will your Act Phase make D/SV/TDV more public?
 - How will it create opportunities for people to step into new ways of being and action on an ongoing basis?
 - How will it shift social norms and deepen relationships?

How do these themes translate to the Act Phase?

Exploring Data to Act

Cuando preguntan a personas si existe violencia en su comunidad la mayoría contestan "no", pero cuando le dan una lista de ejemplos de violencia y preguntan si han visto esos ejemplos en su comunidad la mayoría contestan "si". Amplifica la necesidad de conversar, educar, y concienciar sobre estos temas a personas en nuestra comunidad.

// When community members are asked if violence exists in their community majority answered "no", when given examples of different forms of violence and asked if they have seen that in their community most of respondents answer "yes". Speaks to the need to the need to speak, educate, and increase awareness about these topics with people in our community.

Super important to have educational resources to help others heal from past trauma and prevent those harmful behaviors from continuing
